Convict's death urged

Daughter of man slain in Madison testifies

Relatives of three victims of convicted murderer Glvies Davis emotionally urged Thursday that his execution go forward this week on schedule.

Among those testifying was Mary Perdue Taft, a daughter of James Perdue, who was murdered during a robbery at his Madison furniture store in 1979. Davis was never tried for that crime but admitted it in a written confession.

Taft said her father was a decorated World War II veteran and a popular figure in his community. "He did not deserve to die and neither did these other people, and it's time to carry out the will of the people."

She was among relatives of Davis' victims who appeared before a state Prisoner Review Board hearing in Springfield on Davis' plea to commute his sentence to life in prison.

Davis faces execution early Wednesday for the 1978 murder of 89-year-old Charles Biebel of Belleville. Biebel was shot to death in his wheelchair at his mobile home during a murder-and-robbery spree by Davis and Ricky Holman in Madison and St. Clair counties.

The review board was to make a confidential recommendation to Gov. Jim Edgar.

Supporters of Davis' clemency plea included a journalism professor and his students, friends, ministers and a legislator who argued the state may be about to execute an innocent man.

The group mounted a publicity campaign in recent weeks, employing even the global Internet computer network, to argue Davis was illiterate and had mental problems at the time of the crimes but has since been "transformed."

Both a former and current Madison County state's attorney and a St. Clair County sheriff's detective who took a disputed confession from Davis attacked the clemency group's claims and argued Davis was a vicious killer who preyed on the elderly in rural areas.

"I went to my father's trailer and found him sitting in his wheelchair, dead with a bleeding wound in his chest," said Jean Moore, Biebel's daughter. "For the last 16½ years I have lived with that image."

"My father could not get clemency from the death sentence Davis gave him, and it's only just (that) his sentence be carried out as scheduled," she said.

Her voice shaking, Pam Cash, widow of Frank Cash of Caseyville, whom Davis was convicted of murdering during an auto supply store robbery in East St. Louis in 1979, told the board that she gave birth to the couple's first child the day after her husband was shot and killed.

"My daughter's never known her father," she said. "I do not feel somebody who kills people just to kill them should be allowed to keep his life."

Also appearing was Elmer Sepmeyer, a son of 88-year-old Esther Sepmeyer of rural Maryville, who was murdered in July 1979.

Track criminal records of teachers, Balen urges

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Granite City School Superintendent Steve Balen is pushing for creation and utilization of a national database for teachers' criminal records.

Such a system could prevent sexual abuse or other unfortunate incidents, Balen said.

"The teachers' relationship with the student — by the very nature of the job there is a higher order of trust. They act as a parent."

"And while incidents of teachers taking advantage of that trust are extremely rare, they do occur," Balen said.

In fact, they have occurred. And Balen says they should be stopped.

"There is currently no way to track offenders, including sexual abusers. I just think it is a hole in the system," Balen said.

Balen has contacted U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello about setting up a national database listing teachers who have been convicted of felonies or even accused of sexual misconduct.

Balen would like to see state education officials utilize the database prior to issuing certification.

Nevarte Hagopian, 86, tells what she witnessed during the Armenian massacre of 1915.

They'll never forget

Armenian survivors recall massacre's horror

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Although the Turkish government still denies the killing of Armenians during World War I, three local survivors — Araxie Pashalian, 87; Mentouhie Ohanesian, 89; and Nevarte Hagopian, 86 — have vivid memories of their lives during that time.

Hagopian's father, Ankean Parsaghalian, had already gone to America and was preparing a home for his family when the troubles began.

Hagopian, then 6, remembered Turkish soldiers coming to the family's farm — butchering and eating all the livestock.

"That night my mother (Anedis Parsaghalian) and I went to my maternal grandparents home to find her parents and three sisters," she said. "We found my grandmother, Harom, my aunts Zarouhi and Zahel, my Uncle Bedras all massacred."

"They found her grandfather, a deacon at the local church, tied to a stake waiting to be burned."

"When he saw my mother he pleaded for a drink of water," she said. "My mother was very brave and gave him a drink."

The Turkish soldiers then drove them away and burned her grandfather and the church. Later, they saw what Hagopian estimated were 500-600 Armenian men chained together. She and her mother brought them water and cigarettes, but were chased away.

The men were taken to a barn, which was later burned to the ground.

Hagopian, her mother and two other girls escaped to a wheat field, but Turkish cavalrymen came after them, using their swords to search for the women.

"My mother held us and prayed," Hagopian said. "She told me we would get shot, and it would all be over."

Estimated 800,000 were killed

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

They are old women now, all in their 80s, and instead of happy childhood memories, they dream of destruction and slaughter.

Araxie Pashalian, Mentouhie Ohanesian and Nevarte Hagopian are a few of the small handful of area survivors of the systematic massacre and dispersal of Armenians by the Turkish government at the start of World War I. That action was later used as a model for the "final solution" against Jews by Nazi Germany.

Between 1915 and 1923, an estimated 800,000 of the 2 million Armenians living in the Turkish empire were killed, with survivors fleeing to all parts of the globe.

While most of America focused last month on the bombing in Oklahoma City, the 80th anniversary of the start of these events quietly slipped by.

But not for everybody.

About 1,500 Armenian-Americans live in the Madison-Granite City area.

"It is something that has affected each Armenian no matter where they are," said Rev. Vartan Kassabian, pastor of St. Gregory's Armenian Church in Granite City. Kassabian's father was one of the survivors who made it to the United States.

The Armenian people had lived in the land between the Black and Caspian seas under Turkish rule since around the 14th Century.

Sports spotlight

Scorer moves to defense

Staci Dowdy has gone from scoring goals to preventing them for the Granite City girls soccer team this year.

Dowdy, a senior and one of the team's top offensive threats over the past three years, has switched to the Lady Warriors' backfield and is playing defense after leading Granite City in scoring last year. Dowdy had 16 goals last season and helped lead the Lady Warriors to a sectional title and a fourth-place finish at the Illinois state tournament.

This season, Dowdy has been moved to the sweeper position to bolster Granite City's defense. She was named to the St. Dominic Francis Howell North Shootout all-tournament team last month and has been instrumental in the team's climb to a 10-5-1 record. She has three goals and one assist this year.

Dowdy and the Lady Warriors will begin postseason play next week in the Granite City Sectional. The Lady Warriors are seeded first in the 27-team sectional and will play host to the tournament beginning May 22.

Granite City, which is coming off shutout losses against Collinsville and Chatham Glenwood, will close out the regular season this week with games against Belleville West and O'Fallon. For more coverage, see Page 1B.

3 charged in sting on alcohol sales

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Three people were cited for selling alcohol to a minor during a sting operation Wednesday evening by the Granite City Police Department.

According to Assistant Chief Kip Pomeroy, an underage minor, a member of the police auxiliary, was sent into several bars, liquor stores and grocery stores, where he attempted to purchase alcohol with his own identification, clearly marked as being underage.

Pomeroy said the youth was successful in three of the eight establishments targeted — Players Pub & Grill, 1329 Niedringhaus Ave., National Supermarkets, 3100 Madison Ave., and Schnucks Supermarkets, 3401 Madison Ave.

One person was cited for an ordinance violation at each establishment. All were released after posting bond. Cited at Players was Wanda Chandler, 40, of the 2300 block of Logan; at Schnucks, Connie Law, 43, of Staunton Road in Edwardsville; and at National, Betty Julius, 34, of the 5200 block of Nameoki Road.

Players had been cited previously for serving minors, he said.

"This is something we do periodically, basically to test liquor license holders to be sure they're doing what they are supposed to be," Pomeroy said.

He said the targeted businesses were picked at random from among liquor license holders.

The sting was requested by Mayor Ron Selph, who is also the city's liquor commissioner. "This is something I wanted the police to do, especially with graduations coming up," he said. "Almost every year you hear about some kind of catastrophe because kids have had to much to drink after graduation."

Selph said he put on a seminar about two weeks ago for city liquor license holders on how to properly identify underage customers.

Although grocery stores were not invited, which Selph admits was an oversight — he said it still should have been obvious that the youth purchasing liquor was too young.

"When a kid goes in and shows an ID that says 'under 21,' it's not hard to figure out," he said.

Selph also said this will not be the last check of liquor license holders. "I've asked the police department to have these as an ongoing thing," he said.

Veterans get help this weekend

Veterans in need are getting free help this weekend at Southern Illinois' first military stand down.

"The stand down is like rest and recovery for veterans," East Alton veteran Curtis Blevins of Wood River American Legion Post 204 said. "We want to bring together all the homeless and needy vets who need support and won't ordinarily come in and get help."

The stand down Friday through Sunday at the National Guard Armory in Marion offers medical, dental, employment and legal aid services along with help in day-to-day living problems involving housing, food or clothing.

Vets and their families can also talk to counselors or get referrals to available social services.

"We're trying to help with whatever problems a veteran might have," Blevins said.

The event is supported by public and private agencies that want to help veterans find housing, establish income sources and stabilize their health.

Professionals may also volunteer time by calling Little Egypt Stand Down '95 in Herrin at 942-5233.

Veterans may contact local veteran service organizations or Blevins at 254-2780. Transportation can be arranged.

2nd man guilty in trooper's beating

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

The second of three men accused of beating a state trooper in East St. Louis last year has been convicted of some of the charges in the incident.

Robert Bradley, 32, was found guilty of one count each of aggravated battery involving great bodily harm, robbery and burglary.

He will be sentenced June 8 before Circuit Judge Michael O'Malley and faces up to seven years in prison on the more serious charges, but prosecutors could seek double the time because of his criminal background.

The jury also acquitted Bradley of a second count of aggravated battery against a peace officer and using a weapon.

He will stand trial on a separate charge of obstructing justice in which police allege he gave the wrong name during questioning. No date has been set for that case.

Police alleged that Bradley, George Smith and Dorne Kidd beat Illinois State Police trooper Paul Stygar who was working an undercover prostitute detail in East St. Louis Sept. 29.

Smith was acquitted and Kidd was sentenced to 12 years in prison after conviction on the charges.

Stygar testified that he was driving around the Goose Hill area of East St. Louis when a man who identified himself as George offered to take him to a prostitute. About a block away, George called a woman from a house and the two negotiated with Stygar for prostitute services.

Stygar announced plans to arrest the woman, but said he saw three men approach him from behind. The men jumped him and beat him as he pulled his gun out and fired a shot. The men were finally able to get his gun, badge and watch before taking his car.

Most of the items were recovered in various places within a mile of the beating.

Ashburn sentence is 75 years

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

John Ashburn proclaimed his innocence Friday in the killing of Ricky Muckensturm in 1990. He then stood quietly and showed no emotion as he was sentenced to 75 years in prison for the crime.

"I never killed anyone," he testified. St. Clair County Circuit Judge Lloyd Karmeier said the court and state made serious mistakes in this case that will have to be resolved in a higher court.

Ashburn, of Granite City, already is serving time on previous weapons charges, gave notice that he will appeal.

Karmeier said Ashburn was eligible for an extended prison term beyond the 60-year maximum for first-degree murder because the crime was cold and calculated.

Despite Ashburn's claims of innocence, Karmeier said he could find no factors that would justify a lesser sentence. Co-defendant David Clark was sentenced to 80 years in prison on the same charge.

Given your prior history, I don't see restoring you to a useful position in society," the judge said.

Assistant State's Attorney Dennis Hatch's eyes watered and his voice cracked as he described Muckensturm's injuries. He asked Karmeier to give Ashburn life imprisonment.

"The way this body was found was terrible," he said. "He had a gash across his stomach and a

Safety first

Kerr-McGee honored for its injury-free record

Safety is a team effort at Kerr-McGee Chemical Corporation's Forest Products Division in Madison. And the team has been very successful. Over the past seven years, the Madison plant has seen more than a million man-hours without a lost-time injury.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has recognized Kerr-McGee's Madison workers for that outstanding record.

"Very few places have zero injuries in the workplace. You have accomplished that a couple of times," said Sheila Meizer of OSHA upon presenting the company with a plaque and flag in recognition of its safety record.

Only 140 of the more than six million work sites in the country qualify for OSHA "Star" status. Last week, Kerr-McGee was added to the list.

In addition to the company's outstanding no lost-time record, the Madison Division completed 1990, 1991 and 1993 without a single OSHA-reportable injury.

George Hennigan, president of Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp., said the company's safety record was the result of "total unwavering commitment" on the part of employees. He said extensive safety and health training is conducted regularly, and that employees are members of the Safety Committee, Safety Action Team and Natural Workplace Team. He said that every employee is involved in all aspects of the company's safety and health program.

Kerr-McGee in Madison is one of seven wood preserving facilities of Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp., Forest Products Division. It employs 62 full-time workers engaged in the processing and treating of about a million wood railroad cross-ties each year.

Kmart photo contest winners are named

Rueusing's photo was chosen as best in the "beautiful" category. Lofink's photo was chosen as best in the "needs improvement" category.

The photos were taken by students at St. Elizabeth School who participated in the "It's a Snap" program, which taught second-grade students about photography and the environment using a curriculum program developed by Kmart and Kodak.

Rueusing and Lofink will have their photos entered into a contest of more than 7,500 entries nationwide. Two national grand-prize winners (one "beautiful" and one "needs improvement") will each receive a $5,000 savings bond.

During the week of May 14, the Granite City Kmart will exhibit the photos taken by the students at St. Elizabeth School in celebration of national photography month.

The "It's a Snap" instructional manual highlighted environmental and photographic lessons that encouraged students to look at the world around them and think about the impact they can have on it. Lessons like "identifying my beautiful world," "reuse and recycle" and "how nature recycles" adopt a tree promoted creativity and taught children to be more aware of environmental issues like recycling.

The supplemental educational videotape featured nationally known celebrity photojournalist Linda Soloman, who offered advice about cameras and their usage.

Following the lessons, each student received a Kodak Fun Time 35mm one-time use camera, courtesy of Kodak, and was challenged to photograph six aspects that need improvement. After completing the project, every camera was returned to Kmart for free developing, courtesy of Kmart's photo processors. Each student entered their favorite photo into a contest judged by local officials and Kmart personnel.

"Kmart is always excited about programs that benefit children under our 'Kmart Loves Kids' community outreach programs," said spokeswoman Mike Stolze. "We received very positive feedback from teachers, parents, kids and their communities."

"The environmental aspect of the program and the chance to implement an arts-related curriculum when so many arts programs are being reduced or eliminated was especially well-received."

"This educational program exercises young people's creativity and stimulates their ability to communicate," said Charlie Fischer, manager of educational programs for Kodak's Consumer Imaging.

"Through this program, kids are encouraged to learn more about their world through photography."

Every Kmart store nationwide partnered with a local school in the "It's a Snap" program, reaching more than one quarter of a million second-grade students.

Kmart Corporation serves America with more than 4,000 retail outlets in all 50 states, including Kmart, Builders Square and Borders Group Inc. Kmart holds minority interest in Sports Authority and OfficeMax.

In addition to serving all 50 states, Puerto Rico, Canada and the U.S. Virgin Islands, Kmart operations extend to the Czech Republic and Slovakia and, through joint ventures, to Mexico and Singapore.

More money sought for violence shelters

Women lawmakers want the state to devote $2.5 million more to pay for domestic violence shelters for fiscal 1996-97. (Illinois) shelters are so grievously underfunded that workers are receiving food stamps," Rep. Suzanne Deuchler, R-Aurora, said in a news conference Tuesday. "Our shelters are becoming overcrowded, and women and their children are being turned away."

The Illinois Conference of Women Legislators said the state should shift the additional $2.5 million for shelters from other areas of an already tight budget for fiscal 1996-97, which begins July 1.

Gov. Jim Edgar's current budget plan calls for the state's 49 publicly financed shelters to receive about $10 million, $8 million from the state and $2 million from the federal government.

"If someone wants to increase that amount, they need to identify where the money will come from," Edgar spokesman Eric Robinson said.

Margaret Trushel, executive director of the Oasis Women's Center in Alton, confirmed that some of her employees receive public assistance. Each year the center serves more than 1,500 people on a budget of about $500,000.

However, one woman legislator from this area is not certain the state can afford to give any more money to shelters. Sen. Evelyn Bowles noted that the state also has to find a way to pay off a $1.4 billion Medicaid debt.

"I am absolutely supportive of domestic violence issues, but we have an onerous debt hanging over us," she said.

Seeing the details

Transplant gives woman back her vision

Very people know about macular corneal dystrophy, a rare eye disease that can lead to blindness if not treated.

Belleville Area College student Diane Turner not only knows about the disease, she lives with it.

"This disease causes clouds and spots on the cornea," said Turner, 41, of Granite City. On Dec. 14 she became the youngest person ever to undergo a cornea transplant at the Anheuser-Busch Eye Institute, located at St. Louis University. "They usually wait about a month and a half between your appointment and the time they do the surgery. With me, they only waited three weeks. They looked at my eyes. They couldn't believe what they saw," said Turner, who had a new cornea transplanted into her left eye.

Surprisingly, she was awake during the operation. "They gave me a local. I lay there. I lay perfectly still," Turner does not know where the cornea came from. Prior to the transplant, her vision was similar to watching a blurry television. She could distinguish shapes but everything was fuzzy.

"For the first time, I can see all the details of my children's faces," Turner said. She has four children: Billy, 16; Brian, 12; Karen, 8; and Diane, 3. Turner, who is divorced, said Billy became the "man of the house" in the days and weeks following her surgery.

"He has been my eyes for me ever since I had the operation. I couldn't do the housework, cooking, anything. He helped the younger children with their homework. He was very responsible and you don't always find that in teenagers."

Though the diagnosis of macular corneal dystrophy wasn't made until she was 38, Turner began having problems when she was a teenager.

"I remember practicing for my driver's license test. I couldn't judge distances. My father thought I was scared to death of driving."

Prior to the transplant, Turner's vision in her left eye was 20/400. She noted that a person is legally blind with vision of 20/200. Turner's right eye also is affected by the disease, but doctors do not want to perform surgery on that eye until her left eye is completely healed. Turner hopes her left eye will be back to normal by this fall, which is when she hopes to return to classes at Belleville Area College's Granite City Campus. Turner said she would like to wait to have surgery on her right eye until after she completes her studies at GCC.

She originally had enrolled at GCC in the fall of 1993 with the hopes of becoming a medical secretary. But, as her eyesight worsened, she knew she would have to switch fields of study.

"I contacted Bill Mathenia, who's a counselor here at GCC and with JTPA. I went to talk with him. He had me take all kinds of tests."

Turner decided on a career in computers and enjoyed great success, earning a spot on the honor roll in the 1994 spring semester. As the 1994 fall semester started, Turner's eyesight continued to worsen. That is when she sought the help of Carol Kruchowski, intake coordinator for BAC's Special Services Center.

"I gave her a list of referrals, a list of agencies she could contact to get the equipment she needed. The difference between Diane and a lot of other students is that she actually followed through with things," Kruchowski said.

Turner said she has a special reading machine from the Library of Congress and a special radio from the Radio Information Service (RIS), a service based at Our Lady of the Snows Shrine in Belleville. RIS employs volunteers to read newspapers and other publications over the air to people who are visually impaired.

Turner added that Kruchowski also assisted her by getting her a special portable glare-resistant computer screen for her computer and English classes. Turner hopes to complete her studies at BAC within a year.

"All I have left is DOS," Database and Microsoft Windows," she said.

Her career goal is a simple one.

"I want to get a job and support my kids. I want to get off welfare. I've been on it for a year and a half. I'm tired of it," Turner said. "But, I want a good-paying job. You can't live on minimum wage — you just can't."

Legislation aimed at driving parents to child support has cleared one of its last roadblocks.

The House Judiciary-Civil Law Committee Wednesday sent to the full House the Deadbeats

Don't Drive bill, which would strip driving privileges from parents who are more than 90 days behind in court-ordered child support payments.

The legislation, which the Senate approved 57-0 last month, is being pushed by Secretary of State George Ryan and is patterned after similar sanctions in 10 states.

"It's a sad comment on our society, but threatening deadbeats with the loss of their licenses is an extremely powerful enforcement tool," Ryan said. "They would rather pay up than pull over."

In other states, most parents paid up after getting notices that their licenses were in jeopardy of being suspended, he added. In Maine, notices have been sent to more than 21,000 deadbeat parents, but only 41 licenses have been suspended and $24.9 million in overdue child support has been paid since the program began in 1983, Ryan said.

"This could be a tremendous help in the collection effort," Madison County State's Attorney William Haine said.

In Madison County, about 70 percent of parents ordered to pay child support are between one month and five years behind, said Assistant State's Attorney Christine Kovach; who is in charge of the Child Support Division.

"On cases where (the parent) is working, taking away their drivers license will get them to pay," Kovach said. "Illinois already allows us to yank professional licenses. (Revoking) drivers licenses will apply across the board."

The bill would allow parents to contest the license suspension or avoid it entirely by paying the overdue child support. Parents also could seek limited driving privileges for employment or medical reasons if they showed an inability to pay.

Death of investor affects tax

Periodically, questions arise regarding the tax treatment of qualified money at the death of the plan participant, or IRA holder. There are three separate taxes which need to be considered: income tax, estate tax and success tax.

One situation can be dealt with very easily. If the surviving spouse is the beneficiary of at least 99 percent of the money, he or she may treat it as his or her own and continue its tax deferred status. The discussion below will assume that the beneficiary(ies) is (are) nonspousal.

It is easiest to deal with these taxes in the reverse of the order listed above. The "success" tax is imposed by the IRC Section 4980A(d). Simply, it is 15 percent of the amount by which the sum of all qualified money exceeds a threshold amount. This threshold is the present value of a life annuity of $50,000 per year (which will index) based on the decedent's age. This tax, if due, is payable by the estate (it is considered an addition to the estate tax).

The full amount of the qualified money is includable in the gross estate of the decedent. However, Section 2053 provides that a deduction may be taken for any tax paid under section 4980A. Thus, the estate tax due is based on the full amount of the qualified assets, reduced by the amount of "success" tax.

Income tax is payable by the recipient of the money. This may be the estate, a trust or natural beneficiary(ies). The money is includable as ordinary income to the recipient in the year received. Thus, if distributions are spread over more than one year, the assessment of income tax is similarly spread. This is because it is considered income with respect to a decedent and thus is taxed under Section 691.

In keeping with the general principle that taxes are not taxed, the estate tax paid as a result of the qualified money constitutes a deduction for income tax purposes. If the distribution is spread either into installments or between recipients, this deduction is assigned ratably to each payment. The estate tax due to this money is the difference between the estate tax actually paid and what it would have been had this money not existed. Thus, a separate hypothetical calculation of the estate tax must be done.

Brian Mulhall is a partner with America Group Financial Services. He can be reached in Granite City at 931-7222 or in Edwardsville at 682-8383.

Shoppers' choice process studied

By Roger McGrath
Correspondent

It is said the eyes are a window to the soul. That includes the shopping soul.

Because what we see, according to market researchers, affects our decisions about which jar of applesauce or bottle of ketchup or jar of peanut butter we put in our grocery carts.

The researchers better have pretty good eyes themselves.

Faced with an unfamiliar display of competing products, shoppers in a laboratory test spent just 29.6 seconds examining the display and selecting a product to buy.

And when examining the different brands and sizes, these shoppers looked at one item for no more than 1.3 seconds before moving on to the next competing item.

The laboratory test and other research led marketing professors J. Edward Russo, of Cornell University, and France Leclerc, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to conclude there are three stages of the "choice process," the way shoppers decide which brand and size to purchase.

Russo and Leclerc outlined their findings in a recent issue of the "Journal of Consumer Research."

The three stages of the choice process are:

- Orientation, which lasted, on average, 3.7 seconds in the laboratory setting.
- Evaluation, 22.7 seconds.
- Verification, 3.2 seconds.

In the real world — that is, in the supermarket, not the laboratory — these stages pass much more quickly. In-store studies find the purchase decision is made in 12 seconds to 18 seconds. Russo and Leclerc attribute their subjects' longer decision-making times to the laboratory setting.

Still, their conclusion that the choice process has three stages is sound, they say.

Shelves in the laboratory simulated grocery store conditions, except for a one-way mirror behind the shelves. The mirror hid a video camera to record the 47 subjects' eyes during the experiment. The researchers later examined the tapes and analyzed eye-fixation, when a subject's eyes focused on one of the products on the shelves.

Our eyes are in near constant motion, according to this research. In the orientation stage, when the shopper makes an overview of the selection of applesauce, ketchup or peanut butter (the three product categories the researchers stocked on the laboratory shelves), the eyes fix for just six-tenths of a second on any one item.

We linger in the evaluation stage, fixing on a particular item for 1.3 seconds before flitting to the next. Once an item has been selected for purchase, we verify our decision by glancing at our second and third choices for applesauce for a second each.

Not all purchase decisions are final, however. Russo and Leclerc found their subjects wanted to change their purchase decision 57 percent of the time within 2.6 seconds of making that decision.

Art instructor Phyllis Weiss, left, also was awarded $100 for the school's art department. Christine McHugh, marketing representative for the Pasta House Company, presented the awards.

Art contest winners named

Winners of the sixth annual Pasta House Company and Discover Card high school art contest received $3,000 in prize money awarded at a special luncheon held recently at the Pasta House Company on South Lindbergh in St. Louis. Winning students, their parents and art instructors were on hand to accept the prizes.

The students entering the contest were instructed to recreate a great work of art and incorporate a plate of spaghetti in the design. A panel of four art professionals selected the winners from 68 entries submitted by high schools throughout the metropolitan St. Louis area. Criteria for judging the winners was based on originality and creativity, execution and commercial value. The exhibit was displayed and judged at Plaza Frontenac April 22.

Shawn Pinson, a senior from Hazelwood Central High School in Hazelwood, Mo., won the grand prize of $500. His school also received a $500 prize. Second place was Shane Simmons, a senior from Parkway South in St. Louis. Simmons and his school received $300 each in prize money. Third place was awarded to Dana Anderson, a senior from Granite City High School, who won $200 and the same amount for his school.

Honorable mentions received $100 each and their school also received the same amount. The five honorable mentions were Amy Boring, a senior from Granite City High School; Scott Neale, a junior from Vianney High School; Kathleen Oviatt, a senior from Fox Senior High School; Angela Vogt, a sophomore from Orchard Farm High School; and Chris Teachout, a senior from Logos High School.

"We are pleased to be able to recognize the tremendous talents of these students each year," said Kim Tucci, co-owner of the Pasta House Company. "It is a wonderful opportunity for high school students to learn about the great works of art, have some fun and win great prizes. We thank Discover Card for its support and look forward to another great contest next year."

The Pasta House Company is an independently owned chain of Italian family restaurants located in Missouri and Illinois. It also operates the Mike Shannon Steaks and Seafood Restaurant and Charlie Spoon's Restaurant and Grill in St. Louis.

Each participant received a certificate of participation. First through fifth place winners were awarded trophies, medals or ribbons.

Of 54 teams participating in the Senior Olympiad, the following teams were winners:

First place, Columbia High School Team Five, Regina Rund, Corine Sinner, David Steckmesser and Beth Dietrich.

Frohardt hosts Domino Day

Frohardt School hosted "Domino Day" April 19 to learn about physics and movement while using miniature playgrounds and dominoes. Displays were built by the Idea Lab in first through fifth grades and were shared in a massive display in the gymnasium.

Since these projects involved construction and research concerning the laws of physics, extra surprise rewards were provided by Domino's Pizza. Students completing the extra assignment were entered into a drawing for free Domino's pizzas. Fifty-six students shared in the special afternoon's activities, along with their guests.

Winners of Domino's pizzas were Bradley Grace, Joseph Warchol, Charles Murphy, Leslie Kwiatkowski, Laurie Spurlock and Elizabeth Nelson.

Group names its Citizen of the Year

The citizens committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms is pleased to announce that William J. Kutosky Jr. and Vernon David Kimbro, both of Granite City, have been selected to receive a Citizen of the Year award.

Kutosky and Kimbro have been selected to receive this Citizen of the Year award because of their dedication to the efforts to preserve the right of the people to keep and bear arms as guaranteed by the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution, according to committee officials.

"If it weren't for people like William J. Kutosky Jr. and Vernon David Kimbro, our constitutional rights would have been eroded years ago," stated Alan Gottlieb, chairman of the citizens committee.

Criteria for selection of the Citizen of the Year award is based upon the activities of individual members. Such as being active in local, state and national gun rights issues, by writing editors of newspapers, contacting elected officials or appearing for public testimony. It is not necessary that individuals meet all the criteria.

The citizens committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms is a national organization with nearly 500,000 members, as well as more than 130 members of Congress, serving on their National Advisory Council.

Flyers

Daren DePew said. "That's too bad we gave up a run because (Ahlers) deserved the shutout. He pitched a good game and did a super job."

DePew, filling in for head coach Gus Lignoul, said he was pleased to see Ahlers keep strikes throughout the game. Ahlers retired six straight over the first two innings before allowing a leadoff double by Holman in the third.

"That's the key in any game," DePew said. "If you throw strikes, you get the opportunity to get people out."

"Mike's pitched well for us this year. We're real pleased with him."

Ahlers outlasted Jackson, who carried the Flyers and went the distance, allowing six GCHS hits. The Warriors jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on an RBI single by Jason Wood and added an unearned run off Jackson in the fifth.

SHORTSTOP KYLE BRIGGS, who led the Warriors offensively with a 2-for-4 day, tripled to deep center field to begin the top of the seventh. Briggs, who also led off with a double in the third but did not score, came home in the seventh on a squeeze bunt by Jason Talley.

Briggs scored to make it 3-0 and cap off a strong day at the plate. Second baseman Brian Lloyd chipped in, going 2-for-4.

"Kyle's been coming along as the year's been going on," DePew said. "He's getting a lot more confidence."

Thursday's win was a confidence booster for the Warriors after Tuesday's 3-0 loss at Belleville West. Granite City improved to 14-12 overall (prior to Friday's doubleheader at O'Fallon) and 5-2 in the SWC.

THE WARRIORS, the defending conference champs, are still in the race with three games to go. Conference leader Collinsville improved to 7-0 with a 10-8 win over Belleville West on Thursday and will visit GCHS on Tuesday.

After scoring three runs in the past two games, Granite City will look to snap out of its hitting slump in a makeup game Monday at Altan. The Warriors have recently missed two of their top players this season — pitchers Shaun Kuehnle and Matt Tieman. Both are currently ineligible.

Kuehnle, a junior, was leading the team in hitting earlier this year. But the Warriors hope to regain some of their offensive attack this week in the final SWC games of the year. They also play Belleville East on Thursday.

"We had some RBI opportunities (Thursday) that we didn't come through on," DePew said. "I think we have to have a little more enthusiasm toward the game. This spring has kind of drained us."

50/50 ball — Kelly Williams, Belleville East.

Midwest Player

Some of the most talented high school baseball players in the Midwest are expected to participate in the Midwest Players Showcase on June 11 at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

The event is designed to be a showcase of high school baseball talent from the five-state region of Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, Arkansas and Iowa, said Midwest Players Showcase director Rick Cox.

AN ESTIMATED 125 players will participate in the full-fledged Major League Baseball tryout session as college and pro scouts look on. All NCAA Division I schools, all junior colleges and select Division II schools have been invited to attend.

The support of the University of Missouri-Columbia facility and Ralph Rockmann of Sportsprint have been invaluable in this inaugural year of the Showcase, Cox said.

Coaches from more than 400 high schools are in the process of notifying their players of the opportunity. The tryout is for players completing their junior year and is by invitation only. Players must be recommended by their high school coach.

IN ADDITION to providing a chance to perform in front of a large number of college coaches from the Midwest, the event will serve as a springboard to the 1995 Continental Amateur Baseball 30 players from the Midwest Players Showcase will be selected to participate in the World Series.

The CABA High School World Series in Euclid is one of the most heavily scouted high school tournaments in the nation, Cox said. In recent years, every Major League Baseball team has been represented as well as scouts from 60-70 NCAA Division I schools.

Due to the large number of high schools in the five-state area, any coaches not receiving initial packets should feel free to call Cox at 978-0966 for further information.

down constantly and I kept telling him I would be ready."

Dowdy took over the team's backfield against Collinsville as the Lady Warriors posted their third straight shutout. It was the first time Dowdy, a player known for her offensive abilities throughout the St. Louis area, had ever played a position in the backfield.

"It surprised me," Dowdy said. "Baker put the lineup on the board, and I thought it was starting at the wrong end."

With some encouragement and advice from Baker, Dowdy has thrived at the position. She was recently named to the all-tournament team after Granite City reached the semifinals of the St. Dominic Francis Howell North Shootout.

BUT THE MOVE to sweeper was a difficult one in several ways. No longer would Dowdy be counted on as the team's prime scorer, a position she relished last year.

Dowdy, however, made the switch willingly.

"I guess that's where (Baker) needs me the most," Dowdy said. "Wherever the team needs me, that's where I'm going to play."

Playing striker, you're used to making all the runs. At sweeper, you have to know what's going on all over the field and you have to know when to go back to the keeper."

Baker said Dowdy's versatility has been a major boost for the Lady Warriors.

"She's really had to sacrifice to move from striker to midfielder to sweeper," Baker said. "I just can't say enough about her. She's done a great job, and I can't say enough about her character on and off the field."

"She and Holly were a real force to be reckoned with. She may have to play many spots down the stretch for us. She has been our most valuable player."

DOWDY WAS THE team's go-to player last year. She continues to make runs to the net on occasion.

"I think she's become more of a complete player," Baker said. "She's really been our leader on the field."

Dowdy and the Lady Warriors are 10-5-1 and looking to next week's Granite City Sectional, where they have the top seed. While the team's offense has struggled in recent games, the defense has remained solid.

The backfield has become Dowdy's domain.

"I think we have two excellent wingbacks in Kara Gauen and Roxie Simpson," Dowdy said. "Jaime (Dellinger) and Tonya (Genovese) are real good in the midfield. I don't think we could get any better defense. We have really good depth on our team."

THE LADY WARRIORS are gunning for a third consecutive sectional title and trip to state. Dowdy is hoping to close out her career with a final state tournament appearance.

"I am, and all of our seniors are," Dowdy said. "That's all we've been talking about. We started talking about it at the beginning of the season."

Dowdy has also heard from plenty of college recruiters throughout the year. She has received numerous offers, but is leaning toward Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville.

She briefly considered Eastern Illinois and Lewis & Clark, but Dowdy wishes to stay closer to home. She is close to her parents, Bonnie and Tom, who are two of the Lady Warriors' biggest fans.

"A lot of coaches have called me, but they're so far away," Dowdy said.

"I feel she's really in the top 11 in the St. Louis area," Baker said. "She's a strong all-state candidate."

this week, when the Lady Warriors hit the road on a grueling four-day road trip. Granite City travels to Triad on Monday, Collinsville on Tuesday, Belleville East on Thursday and finishes up in Cahokia on Friday.

own fears and a few unanticipated duties. Children and lovers are the ones who take you to these places now.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Enjoy friendly relationships, but don't take family too seriously today, even if you have to take on extra responsibility for their care and feeding. An older person who embarrasses you needs sympathy.
TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 14). It won't take long to realize this is a new ballgame — get ready for increased income in June, new opportunities in July and plenty of solid duty in August. An inheritance arrives in December.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A new idea may involve striking out in a career direction all your own, and it might work very nicely! If you are traveling or running errands by car, be on the lookout for goofy drivers

If you have two cars, using the more efficient one will help save two million gallons of gas a day —
